The Ciempiés Table , designed by H3O Architects and produced by Benito Urban , is a unique piece of Street Furniture conceived to encourage socialization and the collective use of public space. Its serpentine geometry, inspired by the movement of a centipede, transforms any space into authentic meeting places, with the capacity for up to 50 people . Its organic design adapts to the environment, even embracing trees to provide and creating areas of natural shade, fostering spontaneous encounters and strengthening community bonds. The structure is made of galvanized and powder-coated steel . The tabletop and seats are made with slats of recycled REBNEW material , resistant to moisture and corrosion, and requiring no maintenance.
